

FAMILY INFORMATION SESSION

It's Time For Kindergarten

Do you have a rising kindergartener and questions about what it means to be "ready for kindergarten"?

Join us for a virtual discussion about what skills and experiences are most important for children to develop in the year before starting school. We'll look at the types of learning experiences children typically get through attending preschool, and how to offer those same types of experiences for children who stay home. We'll also touch on the range of typical behavior and development in young children. There will be time for questions and answers at the end.
